istence; Hard Fighting Continues.

By Associated Press.
BERLIN, via London, Sept. 20.—Major Ernst Bassermann, leader of the National Liberal party, in a keynote speech delivered on Monday before his constituents in the Saarbrücken district, declared that the submarine campaign had been postponed and not abandoned. Major Bassermann advocated the widest possible use of both submarines and Zeppelins, and the most ruthless methods of warfare.

The National Liberal leader asserted that his views were shared by Admiral von Tirpitz, Admiral von Kuenter, Prince von Buelow and Count Zeppelin. He maintained that in a struggle wherein the existence of Germany is at stake, the most ruthless use of all possible weapons should be made.

GERMANS ARE OUTRAGED.
PARIS, Sept. 20.—Determined attacks were made by the Germans last night on the French positions at Hill 76, north of the Somme. The Germans gained a foothold at some advanced points, the war office announced today, but subsequently were ejected.

GREEK SENDS ULTIMATUM.

RIOTING IN GERMANY.
LONDON, Sept. 20.—Serious rioting in which a number of lives were lost took place at Chemnitz Saturday afternoon, according to a Central News dispatch from The Hague.

The dispatch says the rioting started when the news arrived of the heavy losses of Chemnitz workmen in the Somme battle. Crowds assembled on the streets and sang, "Die Internationale." They refused to disperse and were charged by hussars. Five hussars were killed and 40 wounded, and about 40 civilians were killed and 500 armed with revolvers were arrested.

BELIEVES VILLA
MAY CUT LINES*Army Officers Inclined to View That Panama Communications are Menaced.

By Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 20.—Belief that Francisco Villa will soon cut the Panama line of communication between Chihuahua City and Juarez, if he has not already done so, was suggested by Major General Funston today after he had read a report on Villa's Chihuahua engagement received from Brigadier General Bell at El Paso.

Stories gathered by General Bell from persons reaching El Paso from the interior indicate that General Funston's forces were driven out of Chihuahua City on Saturday night, and that they took station on a large hill outside the city from necessity and not from choice, as previous reports said. From this hill they succeeded by the use of artillery in dislodging the Villistas.

General Funston refused to give out all details of the Bell report for publication, but he said that it confirmed previous accounts of the battle and indicated even more serious conditions than were admitted by the Carranzistas.

"It seems that they had quite a holiday down there," said the general.

EL PASO, Sept. 20.—Rumors were current here today that Chihuahua City was captured by Villa in a second attack last night. General Francisco Gonzalez, commander at Juarez, and General Garcia declared the rumors were without foundation.

According to the rumor, the attack was preceded by a large force of the garrison. The bandits were said to have occupied the municipal and federal palaces, the penitentiary and two fortified hills.

Consul Garcia and General Gonzalez maintained that although wire communication had been jampered, messages received early today indicated quiet in Chihuahua City.

MAKES LAST APPEAL*Mayor Mitchell Summons Strikers in Effort to Avert Sympathy Strike.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—All other efforts to prevent the threatened general strike of 700,000 trade unionists in sympathy with the striking carmen having thus far failed, Mayor Mitchell decided today to make a personal appeal to Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Street Railway, to concede from his reiterated intention of refusing to deal with the strikers.

Although there appeared little hope of a change in the traction company's policy, the mayor arranged for a conference with Mr. Shonts later today. Details of the mayor's plans could not be learned. Mr. Shonts later accepted the mayor's invitation on condition that representatives of the strikers should not be present.

PROPERTY OWNERS ARE ASKED TO EXPRESS VIEWS ON PAVING
MAIN STREET WITH BLOCKS

Letters were today mailed to property holders along Main street, between Brimstone Corner and the Young bridge, inviting them to a meeting in council chamber Friday night at which the proposal to repave this portion of the principal street of the city will be discussed.

The repaving of Main street has been advocated by Superintendent of Streets John Duggan for some time. There is no question but that all of Main street from Brimstone Corner west to the foot of West Side hill needs repaving. It is proposed, however, to take the matter up first with the property owners between Brimstone Corner and the bridge. Their opinions will be asked as to the kind of paving they prefer and council will act accordingly.

Members of council favor repaving with wood block. This type of paving has been found successful in other

Sentiment for an 8-Hour Day to Wages, Is His Summing Up of Case.

Special to The Courier.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 20.—Charles Evans Hughes, addressing a audience in Arsenal Hall here last night, renewed his attack on the administration for the passage of the Adamson or so-called eight-hour law in the face of the threatened railroad strike. Mr. Hughes discussed and called "little" reasons advocated for its passage, quoted from President Wilson's address to Congress on the subject; challenged the statement of Representative Adamson that it was passed to meet an emergency, and cited a declaration attributed to Grover Cleveland in support of the contention that the law was "a surrender to force."

"We have seen," Mr. Hughes said, "what appears to be the consideration of immediate political expediency at the expense of public welfare. Mr. Adamson said, 'It is hardly legislation, I admit, to meet an emergency. What emergency? The emergency of forces to which the administration had capitulated.'"

"Senator Underwood said, 'We have no information on which to legislate and to fix rates of wages which we are going to do and are attempting to do.'"

"Contrast the action of the administration," the nominee added, "with what was said by Grover Cleveland in 1893 with respect to labor legislation."

"All legislation on the subject should be calmly and deliberately undertaken with no purpose of satisfying unreasonable demands or gaining partisan advantage."

"It is idle to excuse the action by the request for additional legislation with respect to the future. That legislation was not obtained. We are dealing with what was demanded and actually enacted."

"We have an unjustifiable attempt to use public sentiment in an eight-hour working day in order to justify a bill which does not provide an eight-hour working day, but relates solely to an increase in wages. We have seen the choice of what seemed to be the easier way, which escaped the necessity of a determined stand for principle. We have seen what appeared to be the consideration of immediate political expediency at the expense of public welfare."

Mr. Hughes spoke before a crowded house. His speech was his second in Springfield.

"The America of which I have a vision, the America of the future is an America maintaining American rights on land and sea without fear or favor throughout the world," he said.

The audience cheered and applauded loudly.

A BLOW TO LABOR.

SHERBOYGAN, Wis., Sept. 20.—A large crowd greeted Charles E. Hughes on his campaign trip through the Middle West when he arrived in Sherboyan this forenoon. The factories were closed and even the circuit court was adjourned until after the special train left.

Mr. Hughes, accompanied by his wife, walked to a stand about a block from the train and spoke briefly on the tariff and the eight-hour law, declaring the latter the biggest blow to labor in the history of the country.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—President Wilson will be asked to call a special session of Congress to declare an embargo on the exportation of wheat and federal and state investigations of the increase in the price of flour will be demanded by resolutions adopted by 200 bakers of Brooklyn yesterday.

It was asserted that flour would be sold at 34 a barrel and bread at 20 cents a loaf next spring unless an embargo is imposed.

OPPOSE CHANGE
OF STREET NAME*"Committee" Announces It Wants
Eightth, on East Side, to Remain Undisturbed.

That some residents at least will oppose the re-naming of streets is evidenced by a communication to The Courier from a committee of taxpayers on Eighth street, East Side. It reads:

"If further steps be taken to change the name of Eighth street, E. S. W. the taxpayers of said street, have an organization about to object."

A proposal to change the name of Eighth street to McCormick street was discussed by council on Monday night when Postmaster W. D. McGinnis submitted recommendations to rename certain numbered streets on the East Side so as to avoid confusion in the postoffice because of the duplication.

The matter was not acted upon, it being deferred until some future date when council will thresh it over. To change the names an ordinance would have to be drawn up, passed by council and signed by the mayor. In the past, proposals to rename streets always aroused lively controversies.

A board had been placed over the well and the men were standing on it trying to light the fuse by the use of a torch when the explosion occurred. A piece of rock was hurled upward striking Schirf in the neck almost severing his head and carrying his body a distance of 15 feet. Wassenaar was protected by the plank although he was showered with debris and severely injured.

Yards at Fayette Are Completed.

The first coal to be brought from the Fairmont coal fields by the Western Maryland railroad will come down over the Sheepskin on Friday, according to officials of the Baltimore & Ohio. Piloted by Baltimore & Ohio Engineer W. Bruce, the first Western Maryland train to the West Virginia field passed through Connellsville about 8 o'clock this morning. It consisted of 26 empty cars, drawn by engine 627 in charge of Engineer William Beeler and Conductor J. A. Hahel, both of Cumberland.

The train was made up at Dickerson Run and transferred to the Baltimore & Ohio tracks at West Yough. It was in reality a test run to determine how many cars shall constitute a train and to familiarize the Western Maryland crews with the Sheepskin branch. Pilots will be put on all trains until the new crews are thoroughly familiar with the route.

It is said that by next spring the Western Maryland will have from 20 to 30 trains running between Dickerson Run and Fairmont, as the new yards at Fayette will not be ready for use until some time next summer. Until then all trains will be handled in the Dickerson Run yards.

For the present trains will be run to Fairmont via the Baltimore & Ohio on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week, returning on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. It is expected that the trains will consist of about 40 cars.

President Carl Gray of the Western Maryland passed through Connellsville in his special car over the Baltimore & Ohio this morning after having inspected the Sheepskin branch. He spent some time at Dickerson Run and later left for Baltimore.

LOTS OF PEP NOW*President Wilson Finally Decides His Campaign Plans.

By Associated Press.
LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 20.—President Wilson swung into campaign form today. With his plans for discussing public questions before non-partisan organizations instead of making campaign tours fully decided upon, he actively took up his political affairs after a full of more than a week caused by the illness and death of his sister, Mrs. Annie E. Howe.

Administration leaders here predicted that from now on there will be plenty of activity in the Democratic campaign. The attacks of Charles E. Hughes will be fully met, they say, by the President himself, and by members of his Cabinet and Democratic leaders who will tour the country.

FIVE KILLED IN BLAST*Air Dry House of Chemical Company

The force of the blast was felt for miles, but with the exception of broken windows, the only damage to the plant was in the structure where the explosion occurred. The cause, officers of the company said, would probably never be known.

From Cold.

Stricken with paralysis while in the yard of her home near the brick school house in Dunbar Monday night, Mrs. Sarah Willis, aged 57, lay unconscious the greater part of the night. When found by her son, Rose Willis, she was half frozen.

Mrs. Willis was in the garden when the stroke attacked her. Unable to call for assistance, she managed to make her way to an outbuilding where she lay until early the next morning when she was missed and a search initiated.

Reports from the home this morning were that she was still in a lifeless state, although exposed severely to the extremely cold night. The mercury dropped to 37 that night and that the exposure alone did not result fatally is considered almost miraculous.

SEEKS GUARD RECRUITS*Major Porter of Greensburg Pays a Visit to Town.

Major A. M. Porter, who commanded Company H of the Tenth Regiment during the Philippine Insurrection, was in town for a short time yesterday posting bills announcing that he is seeking recruits for the National Guard. Major Porter has his headquarters in Greensburg and is one of the three recruiting officers now on duty in the Tenth Regiment's territory.

He will be at the armory next Thursday for the purpose of meeting prospective recruits and hopes to get some enlistments from Connellsville. He has authority to enlist recruits for any branch of the military service, and for any particular regiment.

So far there has not been any rush to get into the guard, largely because there are few prospects of active service. The best that can be promised at this time is a trip to the border.

"It is fine training for a young man," Major Porter said yesterday.

Agricultural implements and supplies in the barn alone were valued at $15,000 and the total loss is expected to reach $25,000. The farm is the property of the H. C. Frick Coke Company but is temporarily occupied by F. J. Foye, a paving contractor.

REGISTRATION ON SECOND DAY SHOWS
A GAIN OVER 1915*Republicans Overcome Early Increase Made by the Democrats.*SEVENTH IS THE BANNER WARD*G. O. P. Voters Have an Overwhelming Preponderance in That Predict; "Bloody Third" Once More Shows a Republican Inclination.

The registration of voters on the second day, yesterday, was generally satisfactory. An increase of 61 over the second day a year ago was recorded. For the day a total of 739 voters qualified to cast their ballots in the November election. With the first day's total of 581, this makes 1,320 voters who have so far performed the necessary duty of registering in person in order to vote. Last year the total registration for the city was 1,347. To equal last year's mark, 827 voters must qualify on the final day.

With last year's figures as a basis, there are 401 Republicans yet to register, and 125 Democrats. It is probable that both of these figures will be exceeded, as 1915 was an off year, politically. This fact also explains the light Democratic registration of a year ago, as the Democrats cut no important figure in the county campaign. With a Democratic administration in power and a presidential election approaching, it is certain the Democratic enrollment will exceed that of last year by a good margin. The Republicans anticipate this, and are losing no sleep over the prospect.

Despite the fact that the Democrats are apparently making a serious effort to poll a considerable vote in the city in November, they are not making great progress. There was some elation when the figures of the first registration day became known, as on that occasion the Democrats showed a gain of 53 over last year, while the best the Republicans did was 38. This advantage was wiped out yesterday. The Republicans gained 32 over the same day a year ago, while the Democrats ran just four behind. The net result of the two days is a gain of 71 for the Republicans and 49 for the Democrats. Democratic campaign managers are worried and are expected to do some skrimishing to bring out the voters on October 7, their last opportunity to register.

There is a close race between the strong Republican wards, the First and Seventh, for first honors in registration. Yesterday the First bled the Seventh out by one on the total for the day, 104 to 103, but the Seventh proved the banner Republican halfweek. Of the 103 voters, 83 registered as Republican and 20 as Democratic. The Democrats did not lead in a single ward even the "Bloody Third" for years their stronghold, returning a substantial Republican majority of 77 to 65.

Party figures in the First are estimated, this being the only ward in which the registrars failed to keep a record of the Republican and Democratic enrollment. In marked contrast to the uniform courtesy with which the newspaper men were received elsewhere, the First ward registrars rather arbitrarily refused to supply the exact figures.

The Seventh ward registrars worked with efficiency, having their totals ready when the time for closing the polls arrived. The Fifth ward registrars also checked totals. In the Second ward the registrars had no hesitancy in going over the books to supply the information that was desired, while the Third ward did likewise. The Fourth supplied the figures as requested.

The figures for the second day's registration follow:

Ward	Rep.	Dem.	Tot.	Last Yr.
First	83	20	103	80
Second	57	27	84	84
Third	77	26	103	104
Fourth	57	27	84	119
Fifth	58	25	83	90
Sixth	44	16	60	63
Seventh	83	20	103	91
Total	404	207	611	675

Scollies—1 in First; 3 in Third; 2 in Fourth; 1 in Fifth; 1 in Sixth; 1 in Seventh. Total 9.

Prohibitionists—2 in First; 1 in Second; 2 in Third; 1 in Fourth; 2 in Fifth; 1 in Sixth. Total 9.

Conservative—1 in Second.

No Preference—16 in First; 3 in Second; 5 in Third; 7 in Fourth; 1 in Fifth; 20 in Sixth; 3 in Seventh. Total 55.

Gas From the Explosion Choked and Stuffed Him.

—saw the dead men, too, but he did not concern himself with them. He gave no greater concern at that moment to the officer who had been superintending the taking on of ammunition, who now lay unconscious. While Bob still clung to him the officer of the deck gazed overhead and saw that the aeroplane had gone on. He gave a curt order for resuming the work of taking on ammunition; then he spoke to Wendell. "All right, now."

Bob regained some steadiness, apologized, and resumed his work. "Go below," the officer of the deck directed, "and as soon as you are yourself report to the captain and inform him that you report for duty."

Bob dizzily went below. A surgeon had appeared to give attention to the officer—was a lieutenant named Varney—who had fallen. As Bob turned about men of the deck detail were lifting the bodies of the men who had been killed. The loading of ammunition and the work of painting the ship had ceased only for the few seconds before and following the explosion; the playing of four men and the wounding of others had interrupted no one of the unit who had work to do.

Wendell, on his way to quarters where he could wash, passed through the wardroom. Everything which belonged there had been stowed away—electric fans, china, plate glass and looking glasses; battle ports were closed. A junior lieutenant—"Garry"—Starnes—who had been a lieutenant and a close friend at Annapolis, appeared and led Bob into his room. From that room, too, all breakables had been removed. Bob was used to the bareness of the rooms as a preliminary to the firing of the big guns in battle practice, but the bareness affected him differently now.

In addition to absolutely essential articles, there was nothing in Garry's room but two photographs in leather frames fastened above the desk. Bob gazed at one of the photographs. It was of a smiling, direct eye, like a looking girl of sixteen or seventeen. The picture was rather faded; it was seven or eight years old. Bob remembered it well. Garry had had it back in midshipman days. The girl was the one who came down to Annapolis, all flushed and excited, for Garry's graduation and who had dined with him all but three of the numbers at the "hog."

The other photograph was a picture of her, too—a photograph recently taken—showing how beautiful that laughing little girl had become. Now happy Garry had made her, and photographed with her was a little boy of four (Starnes had married the year after he graduated; Bob was his best man).

Very like his mother and a good deal like Garry, too, and wearing proudly as a band for his straw sailor hat a ribbon, "U. S. S. Arizona."

Bob bent and gazed closely at the picture of the little boy, and suddenly and quite unconsciously his eyes blurred.

"That's a great kid," he said to Garry after a minute.

"Lie all right," Garry winked and looked away. He was pleased that Bob had noticed the picture. Bob did not want to talk about it. "You mighty near got it above, Bob."

Garry had not been close enough to suffer from the explosion, but he was badly shaken. He had had to make more of an adjustment perhaps than Wendell, for Bob, forty hours before, had seen a man destroyed, and he had gone off and left the body beside the road because it was war. It was just now to Garry, though he had played the pretense in practice many times to go about his business after men on the ship had just been killed.

A news man of the detail who brought on board the officers' baggage appeared at the door with Bob's bags. Garry received them and opened them on his bunk.

"You're rather a slob," Garry informed Bob. "You'd better make a complete change. If you haven't everything you want I guess my things'll fit you. And, by the way, you might as well bathe now. Every one's been ordered to."

might be. "You mean we're going out soon?"

"Looks like it."

Bob went to the shower bath. When he returned Garry was gone, but the next moment rejoined Wendell in the room.

"How's Varney?" asked Bob.

"Pretty much hurt about the head, but he's conscious, and the doc thinks he'll pull through, but he'll not fight his turret in this scarp. They're taking him ashore to the hospital, and two of the men that were not for food were runners. One was Ferris of the Kansas. Remember him? The best pointer on the ship."

Wendell realized that the sound of the anti-aircraft guns had ceased. It surprised him, when he thought of it, that he did not take trouble to find out what had happened to the machine, and that Starnes did not concern himself about it either. The fate of one aeroplane, which no longer was a danger, was too trivial among the events now upon them.

"What! Are you here?" Starnes questioned. "Watch and divisional officer, Bob?"

"That's what the orders said which I got on the train. I haven't seen the old man yet. You're still on fire control, Garry?"

"Yep."

"Foretop?"

"Right. I'm in charge there. And you're a turret?"

"No, I'm Varney thought. He said on the way over he understood he's to be my junior."

Garry shook his head. "Not any longer—not if they're carrying Varney ashore! I don't mean you won't have the turret; I mean you'll have it all to yourself, and Varney'll have a turret, too, or they will have the turret and Varney take a division of fires by himself."

Wendell glanced about quickly. It was not like Garry to find fault. It was not like Garry to suggest to take on two men's work in an emergency cheerfully and as though he preferred it. His battle station, as he had just been told, was chief fire control officer in the tops. His business when the alarm bells should boom through the ship and the bugles should blow "General quarters" was to lead his "spot-ter" to the top of the foremast and through his telescope watch for the splash of the Arizona's shells.

At ten or twelve miles distance the initial range could only be approximately, so Starnes' fire control officer would "spot" the splash of the great shells as they struck the sea and estimate the distance of the splash beyond or short or to the right or to the left of the target, to telephone his estimate instantly to the chief fire control station far below the armor and the water, from which there would go to the guns the instructions for the correction of the sights, so the next shots would be closer and the next might hit.

Garry was naturally adapted to this work and had been trained to extraordinary skill in it; there was no better man of any rank for this work in the fleet. So the fact of his being chief fire control officer in the foretop betrayed no weakness of personnel.

The fact of Wendell's appointment as second divisional officer without a junior would be different. His battle station, as he had said to Starnes, would be to command No. 2 turret—the great turret, housing three fourteen-inch guns—just forward of the bridge and the conning tower. A lieutenant of full rank, with a lieutenant of junior grade, like Wendell, or with an ensign as second in command, belonged at such a battle station. Wendell had realized, therefore, that his order to report for duty as watch and divisional officer was proof of lack of officers, but he was used to that fact. Often enough, in battle practice, he had been senior divisional officer in command of a turret. But if Varney's loss meant that he was to have no junior in the turret who had been trained at the big guns the weakness in battle might be serious indeed.

Wendell, finishing dressing, hurried to the captain's room, where, formally reporting himself for duty, he was ordered to Mr. Stacey, the executive officer, for assignment to his division.

Cries and commotion came from about the ship, and as Bob turned from the executive officer to inspect No. 2 turret, which he was to command in action, the Arizona left the navy yard. He went out to the quarter deck as the battleship headed to Hampton Roads and increased speed as it slipped into the wide water. A number of the ships which had been in the roads when he had crossed from Newport News in the launch now were in the bay and headed out to sea. Two light cruisers, a half dozen destroyers and the great dreadnaught Pennsylvania were in motion. The yellow haze of powder smoke, pulling from the Pennsylvania's forward turrets and blown swiftly back by the breeze, told that it was a battle ship which was firing, and now a spray of spray, dashing up a hundred yards ahead of the Pennsylvania and half as high as her foremast, told that somewhere at sea a ship of the enemy was returning the fire. The Arizona steamed more swiftly after her sister ship, and now as the vessel rose and fell to the swell rolling in from the Atlantic the alarm bells boomed below and the bugles called all men to battle stations.

The upper works of three vessels—the masts and air control tops and funnels of a first line dreadnaught or battle cruiser, the masts and tops and funnels of two other large war vessels—showed above the horizon to the east. Twenty-two thousand yards, or more than twelve miles, was the estimate of the distance as Bob Wendell was standing on the quarter deck with other gunners' officers ready for battle before the bugles called them to their battle stations.

The hulls of the enemy's ships were then entirely invisible, and the officers on the quarter deck of the Arizona could see nothing at all of any hostile vessels except the three. Only Starnes and the other men in the Arizona's tops—a hundred and twenty feet higher—could make out the hulls of the larger vessels of the enemy and could see besides that they were accompanied by smaller craft. Yet the Pennsylvania, now barely 2,000 yards ahead of the Arizona, already was engaged. Great masses of spray started up about the Pennsylvania where the enemy's shells were striking in the water, and a gun in the forward turret of the American dreadnaught was making reply.

The leading ship of the enemy's line is an armored cruiser of the "Vare" class. The information came from the tops. A Penn cruiser meant, as every one knew, a ship of thirty knots speed and four eleven-inch guns, fourteen of seven inch. "No. 2 is a battle cruiser of the Carthage class." That meant eight thirteen-inch guns in an armored vessel of twenty-eight knots. "No. 3 is another Penn. They are attended by eleven destroyers now in sight. The Pennsylvania is testing the range of the new ship, and that vessel and the Carthage are replying."

CHAPTER X.

The Lure.

BOB WENDELL gazed at the tops of the three great ships through his glass. The late afternoon sun shone down upon the sea. Visibility, for the time of the day, was at its best. The sunlight showed the upper works of the enemy's ships in clear, sharp silhouette to the Americans, while to the men on the Carthage and the Penn the Arizona and Pennsylvania must appear to be steaming down a dazzling line of light. The sun must be directly in the eyes of the enemy's fire control spotters, their sight setters and turret trainers and gun pointers. It was impossible to think that that fact of the enemy's had come to offer battle at all. Their three broadsides did not equal the broadsides of the Arizona and the Pennsylvania; armor protection was all in favor of the dreadnaughts; speed, and speed alone—an advantage of seven or nine knots—adhered to the enemy. They had come trusting to that to save them when the American ships should draw near enough to threaten them; they had appeared, not to offer battle but to lure the slower American ships out.

"They're the cruisers which have been coming down our coast," Ross said to Wendell. "They've sunk four vessels and put the passengers and crews in small boats in that sea to row ashore, and they're been shelling everything in sight; they shelled the hotels at—"

Bob nodded; he had heard. Those ships out there had bombarded helpless cities, murdered men, women and children in little coast villages to attain the very end they now were endeavoring to force the American battleships to come out. After slaughtering and destroying all day they had shown themselves a weaker, inferior force—before the bay, where the division of the newest and most powerful ships of the American fleet lay cleared for action. Their spies undoubtedly had relayed to their commanders by wireless that the word had come from Washington for the Americans to move to the protection of the seaboard. The enemy knew that, whether the American commanders wished it or not, the American battleships must come out.

"They're trying to draw us upon mines, of course," said Ross.

"Or upon submarines."

"Well, if they're playing that game they'll find two at it, perhaps. Six of our submarines went out submerged a couple of hours ago. They're waiting off to the south. That's why the Pennsylvania's pretending to wait for us. We're giving the subs time to get placed."

"They're starting to withdraw to the south," Wendell said, his hands clenching tight as he forward gun of the Pennsylvania roared again. The enemy's ships indeed were definitely moving off, but not so swiftly as at one time; they were just at the limit of extreme range at which main battery guns might hit, and as the Carthage and the two Penns withdrew shells from their turrets continued to spurt up spray before the Pennsylvania.

That ship forced ahead faster, and now Bob Wendell felt the Arizona's deck vibrating with the tremor of her guns pushed "full speed ahead." The how was piled up in a white crest, which splashed up and over the forecastle as the great ship dipped. More spray splashed up as the Arizona, following the Pennsylvania, altered its course to the south in pursuit of the enemy's ships. The men of the gun crews, who had been below bathing, were crowding out now upon the forecastle deck. They were nude to the waist, and the hot afternoon sunlight gleamed on the pink and brown flesh of their bodies and spatted on the drops of spray splashed upon them.

Far ahead of the Pennsylvania and well away on both beams the American destroyers—the Cassia and Cumming—and the Allyn and Balch and two others—tossed and dipped as they dashed through the waves on their watch for the enemy's submarines. Far in the air overhead two American biplanes circled, their wireless sending back word that so far no mines and no enemy submarines had been sighted.

Wendell gazed now and then at these auxiliary craft, but the men of the gun crews, crowding eagerly forward, ignored everything but the Pennsylvania, which still was firing slowly and singly, one gun from No. 1 turret, now a gun from No. 2, another gun from No. 1, again from No. 2. The Arizona's gun crews pointed in their envy and cried out to one another. Scraps of their exclamations came back to Wendell on the wind. Puff! Another gun fired on the Pennsylvania, and now, as soon as that could have been retold, all six guns of the two forward turrets went together in a salvo which hid for a space of second all the fore part of the ship. At the sight of the great yellow cloud belched before the turrets a cheer burst from the gun crews of the Arizona. The thunder of the salvo came down the wind and swelled the cheer into a wild, exultant shout from the men below as well as those above. For every one who could hear or see knew what the salvo meant—the Pennsylvania was no longer testing the range; the salvo told that she had found it. And in the interval of suspense—suspense after the gas of the powder had puffed and been blown away from the guns after the sound had rumbled back on the wind to the Arizona—during the slow score of seconds while the six great shells must still be in flight toward the enemy's ships officers and men spun about and, with heads bent back, stared at their foretop. Would the "spotter" up there see splashes of spray this time beside the Carthage, or would it be "a hit?"

The answer boomed in the alarm bells sounding "general quarters," and the bugles calling all men to battle stations. Leaping at the call, as he had responded a hundred times in practice, Wendell stepped from the sunbline of the wind swept deck into the turret and the yellow light of the battle lanterns. He took his place at the rear of the guns, and as his men went to their stations he gazed through the telescope periscope which let him look out above the top of the turret toward the upper works of the enemy's vessels far off to the east. He found himself repeating his directions in a voice not strange, "We fire at the rear ship in the line!"

At his command he felt the mighty turret revolving slowly beneath him; the turret trainer and the gun point, each, at their places at the periscope sights, were bringing the three monster guns to bear. Every man was trying to be as calm as though the command which had been repeated was simply "Fire at target No. 3." But not even if, the turret captain, who had made the record for his ship at the last gun trials on the ranges, was entirely steady. If Wendell were killed there was no other officer in the turret to succeed. The nearest would be Varney, the ensign, in the handling room below. But that was his last and final duty. The heat in the turret was stifling. Fans sucked at the air, but sweat streamed over the bare bodies of the men standing like the sight setters, the gunner's mates, the "strikers" and the firing pointer, with the electric buzzer strapped over his bare chest, rising and falling as he panted for breath. The sound of the Pennsylvania's guns came, muffled, into the turret, but away for the sight ship was gone. The Arizona was waiting in action and would show them. At the call to battle stations the Arizona was only a couple of thousand yards astern the Pennsylvania, which had just come within extreme range of the enemy. But the enemy's ships were withdrawing. They began to flee so fast that the Arizona would not have a shot?

"Stand by. Initial range, twenty thousand, deflection, five four!"

The voice which first gave it spoke on the telephone circuit; simultaneously the visual signal clicked and a range and the deflection stood out in sharp figures in yards and points—"20,000," deflection "5 4"—mean four points to the right. A voice, clear and slow, sounding from the speaking tube—which needed no dependence upon electric circuits—repeated the instruction.

But the sight setters, helmeted with the telephone headpieces strapped over their ears, already were making their adjustment. The distance was greater than that at which crewmen ranging shots might be fired, but the Arizona was closing with the enemy, the Carthage and the two Penns were offering themselves yet, and the range was shortening.

"Load!"

Wendell had heard moments before the rumbling below, which told that in the handling room the shells and the powder bags for his three mighty guns were being hoisted upon the cars. He turned from his periscope as the steel traps to the handling room opened and the ammunition cars came to place behind the open breeches of the guns. The crews, sweating and silent, rummaged in the monster shells, thrust the great powder bags in behind and closed the breech of each gun. The ammunition cars, empty, dropped below, the trap doors closing above them. At each gun the plugman put in the primer. The three fourteen-inch guns were ready, each separator from the next by steel bulkhead to limit as much as possible an accident in the turret. A few yards further forward and lower the three great places of No. 1 turret, too, were ready, their muzzles lifted to extreme elevation toward the eastern sky.

WILSON SQUANDERS REPUBLICAN THRIFT

Built Panama Canal out of Current Revenue, Patriotically Hoarding Bonds in Treasury.

CARNIVAL OF DEBAUCHISM IN PUBLIC EXPENDITURE

Senator Penrose Believes Looting of the Treasury Will Necessitate the Withholding of Contracts for Battleships and Delay the Whole Scheme of Preparedness.

William R. Wilson, chairman of the Republican National committee, has received from Senator Penrose a brief but positive summing up of the extravagances of the Wilson administration during the session of congress just about to close. The senator says: "When the country realizes what this congress has done in the way of appropriations it will be dumfounded. Already it has been shown that over a billion, seven or eight hundred million dollars have been appropriated—more money than was ever appropriated in any one year in the history of the American government. The total will reach nearly $2,000,000,000 before the end of this carnival of debauchery in public expenditures is reached, because no account has been taken of the $25,000,000 for the Danish islands, the $30,000,000 which the government will probably have to refund as a result of the 5 per cent rebate allowed on importations brought across the seas in American bottoms, and other matters which are likely to come up.

"It is only too evident that this bill which is expected to bring in some $300,000,000 will absolutely fail to meet even the requirements for the ill advised and certainly not urgent projects authorized by the present congress.

"It is now claimed that these projects are to be financed by the issuance of Panama canal bonds. The American people will regard such a proceeding as a very queer one because the issuing of bonds by the Cleveland administration largely helped to bring about the downfall of the Democratic party in 1896. A bond issue has ever since been viewed with abhorrence by the Democracy; now, we find the party leaders compelled by reason of their extravagance and inefficiency, to resort to it.

"To defray the expenses of a nitrate plant and of a shipping board and many other needless projects by the issuing of Panama bonds will be in the last analysis equivalent to paying for them by bond issues. These bonds are lying in the treasury unused as the result of the thrift and economy and wise administration of the Republican party.

"Only about $130,000,000 of bonds were put out in the construction of the Panama canal. The balance of the cost of that stupendous undertaking was paid out of current revenues; and now to advance the novel doctrine that these bonds which represent the thrift of preceding years shall be issued for these questionable projects is, to my mind, preposterous. In fact, it was expressly provided in the Spooner act that Panama canal bonds should not be issued for any other purpose than that of the construction of the canal, and the ingenious theory that they can be issued now to repay the treasury by bond issues, and the money can be squandered by the party in power to finance doubtful projects and to make good a deficit will not alter the fact that such a deficit exists.

"No amount of reasoning on the part of the chairman of the committee on finance will alter the fact that outside of preparedness there has been at least $200,000,000 of wasteful appropriations and expenditures by the present congress. That condition of the treasury will absolutely necessitate the withholding of contracts for battleships and delay the whole scheme of preparedness.

"The figures of the secretary of the treasury may be juggled as they may, but when the secretary is up against the brute fact of not having money to pay for these projects he will find that that figures will not make a surplus in the treasury."

The New York World, which once was outspoken in its admiration for Mr. Hughes, now declares that the people do not know where Hughes stands, or what he stands for. This Wilson organ had no such criticism to make when Mr. Hughes was governor. The World said on May 17, 1910: "He dictated no nominations, controlled no convention, trafficked in no patronage, made no bargains with office-holders. He has rewarded nobody for supporting him and punished nobody for opposing him. What influence he has wielded over public opinion has come through his appeals to the voters themselves." That is the estimate of Mr. Hughes given by the World six years ago. It is a pretty fair letter of recommendation. Could the World say as much for President Wilson? Hardly, for the president has done all of the things that the above statement is true to Hughes—Kansas City Journal.

WILSON KISSED THE HAND OF RED WITH AMERICAN BLOOD.

President Wilson explicitly shows that the Communists, not once, but repeatedly, made attacks on American towns and killed American citizens and murdered them in September, 1915. Yet on Oct. 10, '15, less than a month later, this same President Wilson, through his same secretary of state, formally announced to Carranza's agent, that it was his "pleasure" to take the opportunity of extending recognition to the de facto government of Mexico of which General Venustiano Carranza is the chief executive. President Wilson thus recognized the government which his own secretary of state declares, had been less than a month previously engaged in repeated assaults upon Americans and in the invasion of American soil, the government at whose head was General Carranza, who, less than two months previously, on Aug. 2, 1915, had contemptuously refused to pay to any head of any representations of President Wilson on behalf of mediation, saying that "under no consideration would I permit interference in the internal affairs of Mexico." President Wilson did not merely kiss the hand of that slapping him in the face. He kissed that hand when it was red with the blood of American men, women and children who had been murdered and mutilated with, as President Wilson, through his secretary of state, says, "ruthless brutality."—From the speech of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, delivered at Lewiston, Me., in behalf of Charles E. Hughes.

Editorial Comments

The Democrats continue to ignore Mr. Hughes' speeches to the extent that all they do is to sputter and gasp.

Let it be conceded there are really strong grounds for the opinion that President Wilson may carry Texas next November. If these indications are taken at their full worth some enthusiasts will soon be going out to bet that the tide will sweep on until Mississippi and Alabama are also enrolled in the Democratic column.

Many big Democrats willing and ready to speak for Wilson are careful that their money shall not say anything on his side.

President Wilson says he is utterly indifferent as to his re-election. Perhaps that explains a good many things nobody has heretofore been able to understand.

"Help me, Cassius, or I sink!" For "Cassius" read "congress."

The notion seems to be that the Democratic national chairman is claiming more than he will get, but not any more than he will need.

As further evidence that he is warm hearted and intensely human, Mr. Hughes likes apple pie.

No man is going to be elected—or re-elected—to high office by votes gained from states' rights declarations this late in the game. The states' rights question was settled some fifty years ago to the evident satisfaction of a considerable majority.—Kansas City Star.

"Adequate preparedness is not militarism. It is the essential assurance of security. It is a necessary safeguard of peace." Candidate Hughes has left nothing to be said on this subject. He has sunken out counter argument at the very outset.

"Are we Americans a nation of bunglers?" asks the New York Sun. It would be very hard to answer this in the affirmative—and, anyway, we elect a Democratic president only every once in a while.

Charles E. Hughes cannot get so far away from Washington that the men in charge of the charter of government there do not feel the jolting of his criticisms. In fact, the Democratic leaders at the capital city show symptoms of sensibilities from the way in which the ex-justice of the supreme court has shaken them up. Mr. Hughes is pursuing the only proper method, which is first to take the deadwood out of the way so that the path to righteous and prophetic government may be made clear.

Roger Sullivan steps aside.—News-papper headline.

Students of Democratic politics know what a thin line divides stepping aside and sidestepping.

The Democrats seem to realize, to their dismay, that if they can't persuade Mr. Hughes to change from plaintiff to defendant the case is lost.

The president "will not take the sunup," but "will accept invitations to speak at different places." Chairman Vance McCormack is as Machiavellian as a musketeer.

It is not what Wilson has kept us out of but what he's got us into that counts at present.

It All Depends.

"If Hughes wins an Oregon town will get a new shingle mill employing fifty men," says the Olympia Recorder, "according to an announcement of the individual who took an option on timbered land. If Wilson wins the option will be allowed to lapse. That's the way with a thousand and one enterprisers, all waiting to see which way the wind blows. The moment it is ascertained that Charles E. Hughes is elected, just watch the wheels of industry spin and listen to the hum of business."

FALL STYLES ARE SHOWN BY WRIGHT METZLER COMPANY

Ideal Fall Weather Prevails for the Semi-Annual Opening.

ALL DEPARTMENTS ARE VISITED

Women Take a Particular Interest in the Showing of the Things That Dame Fashion Says Must be Worn to be Considered Stylishly Dressed.

Fall and winter fashions in a bewildering and wonderful variety were displayed at the annual fall opening of the Wright-Metzler Company yesterday. The weather was typical of the season and all day the various departments were filled with shoppers. There is a radical change in fashions in the fall and inspiration for this season's fashions have been taken from many periods and countries.

A department which attracted much attention, especially among the women, was that of drygoods, in charge of R. M. Evans. Dame fashion has been dictating in the fabrics for fall and winter. The leading silks are tulle, gros-de-londrie and Georgette crepe. In colors, dark purples, dark reds, dark brown, myrtle green, taupe and black prevail. The principal dress materials are velours, broadcloths, gabardines, zibelines, poplins and the staple serges, while rich clonking in cut velvet, velvet astrakhan, velvets and velveteens were shown.

Combination of Georgette crepe and serge, plain silk and plaid and striped silk in rich colors are extremely smart, while among the popular trimmings are fur gold and silver lace. A number of cases were devoted to imported metal laces, shimmering laces in gold and silver, flowers, hands and edges, gold and silver cloths, cobweb and light shadow laces, novelties in jewelry, character dolls, a large assortment of ivory received for the holiday trade, dainty neckwear in Georgette crepe and organdies, some models adorned with hand embroidery; large white broadcloth models, one of the season's newest features in neckwear; imported kid gloves. In all timely shades, including tan, gray, purple, alabaster, mode, embroidered in contrasting colors, and some introducing the striped cuff effect; stationery, imported toilet articles, leather purses, small in size, trimmed with gold, silver and metal, and lined with bright colored linings; fancy ribbons, silk history in plain and fancy models. The showing of damasks, napkins, match sets, and luncheon sets, in pink and white, and blue and white effects, was beautiful.

Draped on the counters and ledges were rich silks combined with Georgette crepe, and gold and silver laces, while adorning the show cases was a neat display of stationery, secrets and toilet articles.

The millinery salon on the second floor was the rendezvous for feminine followers of fashion. Stunning models in all the newest ideas in millinery for fall and winter were shown in the prevailing shapes and colors. Many of the hats are very large, and the brims have all sorts of curves. The sport idea has been carried into the winter millinery. Smart models with chenille and trimmings in oriental colors are being shown. Hats are subdued in color and a marked feature is the scarcity of trimming. At the present black achieves first place, and the next in colors are dark browns, rich greens, and the inevitable navies. In trimmings there are bead ornaments, fancy plin, birds, while small turbans made entirely of fancy feather breasts in rich colors, are very smart. Among the larger hats we find the picturesque authors of hatters' plush and panne velvet of a distinct showy quality. Miss Harriet Ridgeway is in charge of this department.

Next in interest was the ladies' and misses' ready-to-wear department in charge of F. W. Wright. Here, tailors' suits, which are beautifully smart with their plain and semi-tailored lines of grace were shown in a varied collection. In a general way the skirts are a trifle longer, while there is a marked difference in the length of many of the coats. Elegant models fashioned of divetines, velours, fine serges and gabardines in all the popular shades, and richly trimmed with fur, were displayed. Styles of beauty were seen in tailored and semi-tailored dresses. Evening gowns or rich satins, silks, velvets, laces and net, were attractively displayed. To harmonize with the richness of the suits were exquisite blouses of Georgette crepe, crisp-decline and crpe chiffon. Tailored waists in smart models were included. Women's coats were never more beautiful and indications are that they will be very popular this winter. They are shown in velour, Bolivia cloth, and these fabrics takes the colorings of autumn in soft low tones. The shades being mostly favored are green, navy, roseclap, Burgundy and plum, and a dark rich brown. Elegant seal models, trimmed with fur, were exhibited.

Rich and elegant furs in taupe fox, black fox, beaver, mink, black lynx and seal, were attractively displayed. In suits the mink and beaver shapes prevail.

The children's department was not overlooked, everything new and handsome in children's apparel being on display. In the domestic department was exhibited one of the largest lines of this merchandise ever shown by the store. The exhibit included blankets, comforts, curtain serims and draperies. The art and needlework department had many pretty and new ideas in finished embroidered and crocheted models as well as unfinished models. Dainty creations

THE LATEST.

Wood brown velours, worsted, with a tiny fold of fur running around the bottoms of skirt and coat, achieve an excellent suit for practical wear. The full coat skirt is snugly strapped, buttoned to match the idea of the commodious pockets. The cuffs roll back to match the roll collar.

In muslin and crepe-re-chene underwear, in white and flesh color were shown. Both the departments are in charge of R. M. Evans. New models in corsets were displayed.

All the newest patterns in carpets, curtains and linoleums and other household furnishings were seen in the carpet department in charge of L. W. Brown.

After viewing the display in the men's and boys' clothing departments in charge of E. C. Moore, it was seen that there is little change in men's and boys' styles. The large hat, on the Mexican order, is a new feature in headgear.

While a number of fancy models in women's shoes were shown, the prediction is that as the winter advances the all-black kid shoe with the French heel will be the correct idea for winter. However, some two-toned shoes, and the combination shoes of gray and black, and brown and black will be worn. Men's and children's shoes were shown in many styles. W. L. Wright is in charge of this department. The gent's furnishing department had a neat display of neckwear, shirts, scarfs and other accessories in a man's wardrobe. The grocery and household goods department in the basement, in charge of Albert Fleming, made a fine showing.

A color scheme of convention blue and cream predominated in the decorations, which were a marked and pretty feature of the opening. Forming a background in the large display windows were large arches forming a harp effect, while near the center of each window were large urns filled with great bunches of hydrangeas. Lattice screens, covered with bunches of beautifully tinted foliage adorned the ledges. Edward Suddick is the decorator.

THE KIND OF TOBACCO YOU LIKE

"American Navy" Has the Delicious, Lasting Taste That Satisfies

FULL OF JUICY SWEETNESS

For purity, wholesomeness and delicious goodness, no way of using tobacco can equal chewing it—and no form of chew can compare with rich, mellow, juicy plug tobacco.

Take American Navy for example. There's a tasty tobacco for you. An elastic, lasting chew crammed full of juicy sweetness. A chew that holds its savory flavor longer than any other tobacco.

In American Navy you get all the qualities you like so much in "scraps" tobacco plus the richer, mellow, juicier flavor that only plug can give you.

American Navy has been the favorite of sturdy, steady chewers for years. You can't begin to get the same satisfaction out of any other tobacco.

Made of choice, ripe, whole leaf by the most modern sanitary processes, American Navy is better than many chewing tobaccos that cost you more.

Be sure you're equipped with a supply of American Navy before you tackle another day's work. In 5c and 10c cuts.

"By the seat of humanity that has infused the theatre since his arrival, the fact that he is in reality irrepressible."

From which it can be seen Mr. McBride doesn't give any credit to the pictures at all.

TOY DRUM HEADS BASIS OF A SUIT

Uniontown Man Seeks to Recover $1,000 Invested in Company Which Quickly Collapsed.

Special to The Courier. UNIONTOWN, Sept. 20.—One thousand dollars is asked by William H. Helme of Uniontown, in a suit tried today before Judge E. H. Reppert against Ewing B. Marshall. The suit grew out of the Weatherproof Drumhead Company which was organized here in 1912. It is alleged by Helme that Marshall approached him on September 1, 1912, and got him to invest in a concern he and George H. Logan were forming to manufacture of single ply drumheads for toy drums.

Shortly after the corporation was formed, Helme claims, Marshall and Logan quarreled and Logan left, and the company had no process for making the drumheads, becoming insolvent. Helme claimed that Marshall never had any patent on a process for the manufacture of drumheads, and misrepresented the concern when he induced Helme to purchase the stock.

Before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen was concluded the trial today, of Irwin E. Williams against Stewart township. The action of Williams was for $5,000 damages for personal injuries he is alleged to have sustained on December 8, 1913, when he is said to have been thrown from a wagon over a 20-foot embankment on the road between Ohio and Chalk Hill while going from Ohio to Bryner's Ridge cemetery. The defense of the Stewart township supervisors was that Williams was intoxicated and that the road was in a reasonably safe condition. The jury found for the defendant.

The case in which E. L. Sherrick, formerly of Connelville but now of Stovall, N. C., sought to recover $16,000 from C. C. Carter of Brownsville was continued yesterday, the defense pleading surprise when the plaintiff was permitted to amend his statement of claim making it $10,000 instead of $16,000. The case grew out of a land deal in Mississippi.

An agreement verdict was taken yesterday in the suit of John B. Klein against Thomas H. Miller and John O. Miller for $300 as triple damages for timber valued at $200 which he alleged the Millers, Miller cut from his farm in Springfield township. The plaintiffs agreed upon $700 for the plaintiff. The case had been decided in favor of the defendants in 1915 but Mr. Klein secured a new trial.

Motion for a new trial has been filed in the case of Rev. Stephen Ulrich of Connelville, who was convicted of attacking Mary Catherine Zboya.

A jury took an automobile trip to Jefferson township this afternoon to view the ground in a dispute between A. G. Rothery of Elizabethtown against the supervisors of that district. Rothery alleges $5,458 is still due him for the paving of a road from Stuckwagner's Hill to the Redstone Presbyterian parsonage in 1911.

Horner and their employees made the transfer of stocks. The two business men changed locations and moved goods and fixtures without suspending business.

Facts Versus Fallacies

FACT is a real state of things. FALLACY is an apparently genuine but really illogical statement or argument.

THAT the indulgence in alcoholic beverages is the greatest cause of crime is a FALLACY that many times has been shown by FACTS. Another proof of this is furnished by the following extracts from the "Rocky Mountain News":

"IDLENESS, not intoxicating liquor, is the greatest cause of crime," declares District Judge John A. Perry, as a result of his observations during one year's service as presiding judge in the West Side Criminal court.

"WHAT causes criminals? Not whiskey! Crime is generally charged to whiskey. I thought so until I went to the West Side court and presided for more than a year and had every kind of a criminal before me. There were few cases before me for which drink was responsible. I would say that 10 per cent. would be a large ratio to give to liquor as the cause of crime. I would like to say that 'prohibition will lessen crime in this state, but I am sorry that I cannot say it conscientiously."

Crime is
Idleness

DO not anticipate a reduction of crime through prohibition in Colorado. If drink had anything to do with it, I should fear an increase in crime. . . . A drunkard or child—any one who has the price—can buy from a 'bootlegger,' while a regular saloonkeeper, if he is decent, is inclined to draw the line. The 'bootlegger' knows he is an outlaw and does not stop at anything."

NOT only does Judge Perry, in the above interview, dispose of the FALLACY that the greatest cause of crime, but he also proves the FACT that Prohibition does not prohibit, but merely prevents the legalized and regulated sale of liquor.

Your Mail

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene
By Samuel G. Dixon, M. D.
L. D. D., Consultant
of Health.

Do you read your morning mail at the breakfast table? Have you ever used a knife or fork to open your letters? It is not an uncommon practice and yet an uncleanly and dangerous one.

The postoffice is essentially a public utility and it is universally used by all classes of people. A common point of destination may put my lady's duty note beside a dirty scrawl from the vilest of slums.

Millions of pieces of mail matter are handled. A certain number of these come from people who are suffering from all kinds of diseases, some of them loathsome and infectious.

Stamps and envelopes, contrary to hygienic rules are for convenience sake, frequently licked. Despite quarantining precautions mail sometimes comes from houses where cases of communicable diseases exist which have not been reported.

Mail bags are not subjected to regular disinfection, and are not so cleansed as to make them safe from the danger of becoming a factor in the transmission of diseases.

During the recent epidemic of infantile paralysis many of those working on the disease from the opinion that it may be carried by a third person. It is unreasonable to presume that the disease may be carried through the mail?

THE COST OF LIVING.

The High Cost of Living Continues to be a Matter of Discussion.

No matter how much we discuss the cost of living, we must admit that present conditions are very favorable to saving money. Every able bodied man is at work. He is earning unusual wages. A small part of his earnings would make a very fine savings fund. Apply this thought to yourself. When pay day comes, lay aside a part of your pay for the bank account. The Citizens National Bank invites savings and pays 4%. 138 Pittsburg street.—Adv.

Revelation in Style Revolution in Price

Our Fall Opening was a revelation to hundreds of women who visited THE BIG STORE, surpassing in merchandise splendor anything anticipated even by those who are best versed in fashions.

But if the women of this city and vicinity have marvelled today at the great profusion of styles and fabrics—they will be amazed tomorrow at the moderate prices the same stylish garments will be offered to the public. The reason lies in the forceful fact of our extensive buying power. We are associated with a New York buying syndicate, which does the buying for a chain of 150 of the largest stores in the country—an organization which, besides keeping its associates in intimate touch with all up to the minute style developments, is also able, by purchasing large quantities, to pick the plums of the market, and buy for less, than other dealers have to pay.

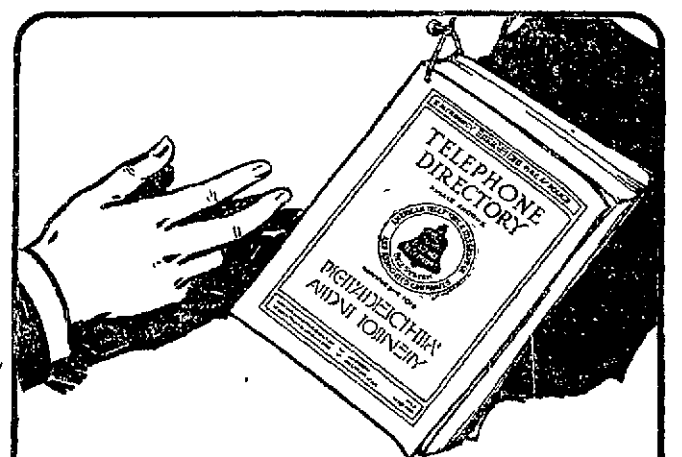

Enjoying all these advantages, and sharing them fully with our friends and customers is the reason of our low price leadership and the steady increase of our patrons.

It is in this way that we are going to start tomorrow—

Astonishing Power of Iron to Give Strength to Broken Down Nervous People

Physicians Say Ordinary Nuxated Iron
Will Increase Strength of Debilitated
Folk 200 Per Cent in Two Weeks!
Time Is Many Instances.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their malfunctions of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to channel food into living tissue, and therefore nothing you eat does you any good. You don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of the continued blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weak, nervous and all run down, and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is run thin, another is burdened with unhealthy fat, some are so weak they can hardly walk, some right they have hypochondria, kidney or liver trouble, some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day, some fussy and irritable, some skinnier than bladders, but all lack physical vigor and endurance. In such cases it is useless to try to eat more food, for it goes to waste, and it is useless to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fading vitality for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what an one tells you, if you are at all stronger and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: go home you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired, next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. You have been nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time, and now you are strong and healthy and endure and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you are faced to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a sure and stomachic strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that this kind of iron, from ancient times, has been so adulterated with stomachic and were not assimilated, and for these reasons people frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the new form of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NUTRIENT—The manufacture of Nuxated iron has such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by A. A. Clarke and all other druggists.—Adv.

At the Theatres.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"BLUEBIRDS FOR HAPPINESS"—An expression that finds realization in "The Girl of Lost Lake," the Bluebird photoplay to be exhibited at the Soisson Theatre today. Because a young man lured when a rugged mountain girl expressed her disappointment when her favorite story was once again "Continued in our next," the subsequent lives and actions of the seer and the romantic have furnished a legend of the Sierra Nevada Mountains that has been turned to good account by Bluebird Photoplays, Inc. The ordinarily simple incident that led to a slight misunderstanding between a pair of childhood sweethearts, has been translated to an immensely interesting photoplay, with Marie Gonzalez, Val Paul, Fred Church, George Hernandez and other clever Bluebird players interpreting the various roles. Followers of Bluebirds will recognize these players as principals in "The Secret of the Swamp," another screen-drama of originality and splendid cast, produced by Ivan F. Tinker. The likewise related, from his own accounts, "The Girl of Lost Lake," "The Triumph of Truth" in a drama of the sea, with Glen Madison. That the sea will hold its secret to proverbial Harvey Gates has written a beautiful story connecting a girl who is saved from a watery grave "Juno," "Chloe," a legendary drama "The Price of Victory," a romance drama with Douglas Gerrard. Tomorrow, Pearl White in the "Iron Claw No. 19."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"HELL TO PAY AUSTIN"—A five part Triangle attraction is featured today at the Paramount. Wilfred Lucas, ably supported by Beside Love, is starred. The picture is finely handled and of notable interpretation. The story of guardian and ward falling quietly in love with each other through an intimacy of relationship that brings about mutual dependence, understanding and trust, is a sweetened old story, and a popular one. The picture is so well acted that many of the sub-titles will get big laughs, particularly those used when a lot of hard-drinking lumbermen sit down in a bar and decide by a game of stud poker to which finishing school the little orphan "Nettie," shall be sent. "Nettie" has been placed in the care of "Hell-to-Pay Austin," foreman of the lumber camp, a hard bitter, and in reality a man of superior quality hiding under an impression that he killed a man who will live. His character is clearly set forth by Wilfred Lucas, but interest settles on "Nettie" and here is where the notable interpretation comes in. In the character of "Nettie," who has a role that suits her size, her personality, and her talent, but that is only a small part of it—she has demonstrated beyond the possibility of doubt that she is an accomplished actress. She has blazed out a brilliant star in one performance "Love Got Away," a Keystone comedy in two acts is included. Tomorrow Mary Miles Minter in "Dimples" and "A Romance of Virginia" preceding Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Dene, are the feature attractions.

WILL INSPECT TRACKS

Pennsylvania Officials Preparing for Their Annual Tour.

The annual track inspection of the Pennsylvania railroad east of Pittsburgh will be held on October 3 and 4. Accompanied by about 300 operating officers, General Manager S. C. Long will go over the main line from Pittsburgh to New York. The trip will be made in specially equipped observation trains.

Prizes amounting to $5,000 will be awarded to the supervisors and their assistants who have maintained the sections of the roadbed in the best condition during the year. The awards will be announced upon the arrival of the inspection party at Harrisburg on the evening of October 3.

To determine the exact condition of the line and surface defects recording instruments are used in connection with jars of water placed in the inspection car. These records, in addition to the personal observations of the inspectors, form the basis on which the prize awards are decided.

ROCKWOOD.

ROCKWOOD, Sept. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Miller accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Walter of Main street, departed Monday for an extended tour of the east. They will visit Chambersburg, Gettysburg, Ball Run, Harrisburg and several other cities before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Philippi and daughter, who have been visiting their friends and relatives in Rockwood for the past week have returned to their home at Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Shanks spent Tuesday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Chanks of Casselman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Miller have returned home after a very pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Hyndman.

Rev. O. G. Frye, pastor of the Rockwood Evangelical Church, has been moved to the Morrellville church at Johnstown, and Rev. Horlick will have the Rockwood and Elk Lick charge. This will be his first charge since he was ordained, having recently graduated from college.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Miller have returned home from their two weeks' vacation which was mostly spent at Atlantic City.

Johnson Getting His Bumps.

Washington's Great Pitcher is Not the Terror of Old.

A mystery to Clark Griffith is why Walter Johnson is being hit with such unusual frequency.

"I think Walter has as much stuff as he ever had," said Griffith the other day. "In fact, I believe he has more, for now his curve ball is more effective than it ever was."

"If there is any solution to the enigma,"

With his grapple speed the ball travels from the bat line lightning, even though it is hit with but a fair swing. Right field litters lavishly hit to left field and vice versa against Johnson, showing that even those hits which are made are on the strike side.

"Johnson is being hit more because the batters are facing him with greater courage. Players have been hit by Walter and still lived, and the batter figures what one man can do another can."

"That's the only explanation. Johnson is as good as he ever was. Some days I think he's even faster than he was as a kid. He's always in perfect shape, and he is a willing worker."

"But it is the fact that the batters have schooled themselves to stand up to the plate with the big fellow working that has improved their record and hurt his."

HAL CHASE CINCINNATI IDOL.

Sensational First Sacker in Solid With Red Town Fans.

To the Cincinnati fans has been vouchsafed the privilege of seeing Hal Chase at his best on the field and at the bat. Playing as he has not played since years ago, when his performance at first base for the New York Highlanders set the baseball public by the ears; content with his surroundings, even though they be those of a trailing club, and a firm friend and admirer of his manager, the peevish Hal is daily vindicating the wisdom of the Cincinnati club in obtaining his services.

The renaissance of Chase will be one of the outstanding delights of an otherwise despicable season for the Reds. His earnestness during the game and his disposition to give the best there is to him to advance the interests of his club have long since disabused the fan mind of the belief that Chase was a breeder of dissension in other teams with which he has been connected. Hal says himself that he was misunderstood, and he emphatically denies that in his long baseball career he ever attempted by word or deed to undermine the manager of his club.

Cochran to Race in East.

Plans are on foot to send the winning crew of the annual eight oared shell races between the University of California, Leland Stanford and the University of Washington, Seattle, to the Poughkeepsie regatta each year, each of the colleges contributing, and in that way keep the rowing prowess of the far west in front of the eastern aquatic experts.

WALTER JOHNSON, WASHINGTON'S STAR PITCHER.

ma I think it rests in the fact that the league is getting used to Johnson. For two years or more the batters were scared of their lives when facing the big fellow. But he has hit few men, and his control is so good that the batters are beginning to feel they can stand flatfooted against him and at least take a solid smash at the ball.
